The goal of this app is to make it easier to export your Sound Bibles files onto your computer. The benefits of having your sound files on your device rather than on the net, is obvious.. There are so many good sound Bible apps available and for the most part they are very poor in sound.. This app allows you to add your Biblical sound Bibles, work out of your device easily and then export them as a sound file which is easily shareable and can also be used to play them back on your computer. This app is made free so you can try it out before you decide to purchase it..if you want a complete app which will allow you to do this, in addition to sorting the sound on a timeline, tracking your reading and much more, then you will need to purchase the full app which is available here: If you are using any other app to add your sound files then please share your experiences with us as I would like to make this app as good as it can be for you.. This app has no ads.. all the features are free.. and it is very easy to use. It is what we would like to have.. just a good sound Bible app, that works, looks good, and plays your sound Bibles easily. Praise the LORD! The release of Credo is here, and there are far more improvements than I originally anticipated, so i will keep this very brief.. What have I done this time? First of all there is a major bug.. I know many of you have been waiting for this fix, and for you, it is here. Its a complicated bug and it has taken me quite some time to work out how to fix it.. the fix is in the app.. all you need to do is enable the Credo Beta group on the Apple developer site, and then your able to download the newest beta of Credo from the App Store. The changes Ive made are: 1) the bible study mode (which i think everyone uses) is more similar in behaviour to the old Credo.. so Ive

---

given this study mode more polish 2) you can now read, mark etc bookmarks in text to chapter mode, which are now linked to the Chapter/Bookmark when you click on them.. I am also adding a toggle

This is a software program that runs on the command line. It operates by running a specified executable on a batch of input and writing all of the output to a file. Bootstrap Admin User Uses the same file mechanism as other Ruby Gems. Except it's executed from the command line with an optional file parameter indicating the path to the Ruby library to load. Thus it's possible to invoke "bootstrap" from anywhere on your computer and it will work. If you would like to use the Ruby gem as a shared library with Rails, require "bootstrap/rails" in your application controller, then call `@bootstrap.ruby_lib("admin/users")` from the file you want to use the gem as a shared library. Notice that the gem uses the standard Ruby filesystem mechanism so that includes, lib and vendor directories can be used as an alternative for $LOAD_PATH. Usage Usage The rlf/user library is used for sending username/password pairs to various servers. It achieves this by creating a class which subclasses the Net::Http client and override the two methods where it sends the username and password and returns the response. It has to use that subclass instead of the standard Net::Http object because it must set the x-requested-with response header. The library then contains a File class that subclasses Net::Http and overrides the `send_request` method to connect to the given host and port, perform the request, and parse the response. Essentially, the `rlf` library simulates what a CGI program would do except it sends the information to a server in a format that normal Ruby programs understand. The data structure is similar to that used by the `rack` library. If you use the gem as a shared library, you should specify the path to the library in the `CLASSPATH` environment variable, so that when the gem loads, the paths it needs to load libraries are already set. If you wish to use the shared library with Rails, just require "r

---
