You'll never know what cars you're going to see, or who's going to be there. And you'll have to bring your own drinks, and perhaps food too. You'll also need to set your alarm clock. No telling what time you'll drop off and pick up your passenger if you're following me around all weekend. Oh, and I need to take my camera with me, too. Not only can it help me document all the cool cars we'll be seeing together, but it's also a great tool for me to use to show you in-depth coverage of any performance cars you see, and so on. But you might want to bring your own camera. All the same, it's pretty awesome having your local Impreza-basher invite you over to see the Mazda Sport you've been dreaming of. It's a luxury of having a workshop with a decent-size showroom - there's not really anything like that in Tokyo. This Sport is special, that much I can tell you. It's a great example of Mazda's efforts to bring a new look to the reborn SkyActiv program that was finalized at the Tokyo Motor Show. 6d1f23a050
